Portfolio Comments

March saw the ESG portfolios slightly outperform the Benchmark, narrowing the gap in the cumulative performance. The two main positive contributors to performance were the fact that the portfolios are underweight in both the Oil and Gas and the Material and Mining sectors. Both these sectors underperformed the market following strong performance in the first months of the year. Companies with a higher ESG score also tended to out-perform the market in March, as there was an increased focus on sustainability following President Biden's announcement of $2tn green infrastructure spending. One of the main headwinds for the portfolio was having zero exposure to tobacco producers with tobacco being one of the best performing sectors for the month, up over 11%.

Major stock markets were positive in March with the FTSE 100 up 4.16%, S&P 500 up 4.34% and the Euro STOXX up 6.64%. This was on the back of an optimistic view that the major economies are starting to come through the pandemic and that the global stimulus packages will support the economy further. Carrying on from February 'value' companies tended to outperform growth and technology companies, however the technology and growth indices were still positive for the month.

Government bond yields stabilised in March following the volatility seen in the first two months of the year as yields increased from record lows. This was helped by the US federal reserve stating that it did not see the need for interest rate rises in the near term, even if inflation came back into the system. The US 10-year Treasury yield fell 0.024% to 1.72% with the UK 10-year gilt finishing the month at 0.84%.
